

Jeremyjmartinez.com Privacy Policy: 2013

Jeremyjmartinez.com collects information in the following ways:

Google Analytics

Email Form

Here is the information I may collect about you:

I use Google Analytics to help understand how effective my website is and where I can make improvements. Google provides me with information like:

What browser, device and network you use to visit the site. Which pages you've visited and how long you've visited them. How you found my website. What part of the world you're in (I can see what city a visitor is in, but not really anything more detailed than that, and I won't know if that visitor is you). Google Analytics also tells me how often you've visited the site. Google Analytics data is stored and protected by Google and ultimately covered by Google's privacy policy.

Jeremyjmartinez.com also has a contact form. I use this form to help customers reach me via e-mail because many people prefer to communicate with email. The contact form provides information like:

Your Name, Phone Number, Email Address. This information is forwarded to my secure personal email account which uses Google's two step authentication. I may use the information you send to contact you directly.

All data collected is stored securely by Google.

Any data collected is only visible to the Owner of the site.

A Special Note about LinkedIn and Behance:

It is important to be aware that this site contains links to Behance and LinkedIn. The type of information collected about you when you visit either of those sites is covered by the LinkedIn and Behance privacy policies.

If you have any questions or concerns you can contact the site owner/webmaster via email here:
